Cheetah Learning Offers Jubilee Day Tools

CARSON CITY, NV, DEC. 30, 2008 – Sometimes, losing your baggage is good.

“Creating a better future – personally or professionally – does mean letting go of the past. In ancient times, Jubilee Day was a designated day every 50 years when the rich were encouraged to forgive the debts of the poor,” said Michelle LaBrosse, PMP®, founder of Cheetah Learning (www.cheetahlearning.com). “Mahatma Ghandi also noted ‘The weak can never forgive. Forgiveness is the attribute of the strong.’ To encourage people to borrow from these philosophies to create a better 2009, Cheetah Learning is providing them with the tools they need to make it happen in honor of our Jubilee Day celebration.

“A clean slate is a great way to start the New Year, so we’re encouraging people to forgive the debts and transgressions of others, so that everyone can look forward to a new start in 2009,” said LaBrosse, “Through conflict resolution, negotiation techniques and Project Management skills, it’s much easier to resolve 2008 problems, even if you’ve been dragging them behind you year after year. It’s a great way to send out the old and bring in the new.”

LaBrosse is no stranger to adversity, many times created by the behavior of others. But, she learned the benefits of forgiving and forgetting while growing her business and found that getting rid of “baggage” made success far easier to achieve. Her techniques have helped her company, Cheetah Learning, become an award-winning global provider of education and training for project managers. Tens of thousands of Cheetah students have used their Project Management professional training to improve their personal and professional lives.

Cheetah Learning is a global provider of education and training for project managers and was named the 2008 Professional Development Provider of the Year by the Project Management Institute. Some of the tools offered by the company are:

- A free Conflict Resolution download at <http://www.cheetahlearning.com/Buzz/index.asp> guides you through a resolution process.
- A brief Jubilee Day podcast at <http://www.cheetahlearning.com/Buzz/index.asp> explores the history and benefits of Jubilee Day.
- Participate in our Jubilee Day activities on Dec. 30 at <http://www.cheetahlearning.com/Buzz/index.asp>, and you will receive the promotion codes for significant discounts on popular courses.
